To our business partners and friends:

As you may know, Barbara Feldman, co-founder of Capital Rubber, has been battling cancer for the past several years. While resilient and strong-willed throughout the difficult treatments, this past challenge proved to be too difficult to beat. Barbara passed away last week peacefully in her home with us by her side.

We are very much appreciative of all of the warm and caring messages that have been received. From clients, to vendors, to reps, to accountants and landlords, all who worked with her were impacted by her energy and strong spirit. She was in the industry for 48 years and was passionate not about selling rubber and plastics but about making connections and helping clients with their challenging projects.

It is a solemn day here but we are strong because she was, and taught us to be. We will continue to bring her spirit to the way we do business. We appreciate your support and look forward to working together in better times to come.

A small service was already held (details can be found at the Chicago Tribune website). Barbara was very active in cancer wellness programs, fundraisers, and education. Please ensure that you and your loved ones are screened and informed, and consider donating to the National Ovarian Cancer Coalition or a cancer foundation of your choice.
